AN ACT
CREATING THE DEPARTMENT OF DISASTER RESILIENCE, DEFINING ITS POWERS AND FUNCTIONS, AND APPROPRIATING FUNDS THEREFOR

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Philippines is located along the Pacific Ring of Fire and the Tropical Cyclone Belt. As a consequence, the Philippines is considered one of the most vulnerable to natural hazards and climate change. Each year, our country sustains immense damage and tremendous losses due to natural disasters. This includes loss of life or injury, damage to infrastructure, properties, and equipment, interruption of food supply, disruptions to critical services, loss of livelihood, business or revenues from business interruption, disruption of economic development, and damage to the environment.

In 2010, we passed Republic Act No. 10121 or the Philippine Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Act (DRRM Act). Since then, the country has endured many climate-related calamities: Typhoons Juan (2010), Sendong (2011), Pablo (2012), Yolanda (2013), Ruby (2014), Lando (2015), Lawin (2016), and Paolo (2017). On top of these typhoons are the "habagat" floods recently and in 2012, and the Bohol-Cebu earthquake in 2013.

The DRRM Act continues to be an important law as it emphasizes risk reduction rather than disaster response. However, the Philippines' experiences with previous disasters have shown that the new policies, resources, institutional arrangements and hence laws are needed to squarely address the country's disaster prevention, mitigation, preparedness, response and rehabilitation requirements.

As a member of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC), the Philippines initiated the APEC Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR) Framework. This was eventually adopted in 2015 by the 21-member body to facilitate collective work in building adaptive and disaster-resilient economies supporting inclusive and sustainable development in the face of the “new normal.”

Moreover, the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030 and the Paris Agreement of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC), endorsed by the United Nations General Assembly in 2015 and 2016, respectively, recognize the need to address climate change as one of the drivers of disaster risk by fostering collaboration among the national and local governments with other stakeholders including non-government organizations (NGOs), international organizations, the academe, and the private sector.

In view of these frameworks, this bill addresses the need for the creation of a single, independent and permanent agency with the mandate, powers, and budget to oversee a comprehensive, coordinated strategy for addressing natural and man-made disasters.

To achieve this, the functions of NDRRMC and the Climate Change Commission, as well as the DSWD’s portfolio related to disaster response will be rolled into one line agency. It is envisioned that with this bill the country will be able to adopt and mainstream the principle of “Building Forward Better,” and take decisive steps beyond previous understandings of disaster risk reduction and management. This measure will complement our proposed measure on making it mandatory that disaster awareness and disaster mitigation are taught as part of the curriculum of all primary and secondary schools.

In line with the Philippine Development Plan (PDP) 2017-2022, which recognizes the great importance of ensuring the country’s resilience to natural disasters and mandates the urgent implementation of effective disaster resilience measures to help induce poverty-reducing growth and reduce inequality, the immediate passage of this bill is imperative and highly sought.
